Strategic Plan 2008 – 2012.
Rationale for three year old education program

One of the key drivers of the Catholic Education Office of WA’s mission is to improve learning outcomes and optimise life outcomes for Catholic students. The current research in the early years of a child’s life shows that what occurs in the early years is vitally important for long term life outcomes. The brain development that occurs in the early years, particularly, the first three years of life is crucial and occurs more rapidly than at any other period. During this time the brain develops a multitude of pathways. The pathways that become permanent in the young child’s brain are those that are used or practiced most often.

Positive experiences lead to positive pathways and negative experiences lead to negative pathways, therefore children who have positive early years experiences form strong positive pathways and go on to have improved opportunities later in life. Research shows that those with positive early experiences have increased life opportunities in education, self esteem, social development, health and employment (Shore, 1997). It is therefore essential that as a community we work to ensure the best possible start in life for those important members of our community; the very young.

During this most impressionable and malleable stage of a child’s life the family and community should work to support one another to ensure the best possible start for each child. The family is the faith community of the child and the CEOWA acknowledge and support the family as the first educator of the child. Christian parents have a responsibility for the formation of their child’s faith from the earliest years. This role of the family can rarely be substituted; (Mandate, 2001 – 2007) however, it can be supported by the community to ensure the child has the best possible start to life. The introduction of three year old education programs in Catholic Education in Western Australia seeks to continue the mention of Jesus Christ as set out in the Mandate letter.

The Catholic Education Office of Western Australia has a long history in providing quality education to the Catholic children of Western Australia, hence is well placed to provide three year old educational programs to children.

What is a three year old educational program?

Three year old education programs are those which operate at a school as part of an education course. A three year old education program is only available to children who have turned three years of age. It is not available to children who have not yet turned three years of age. The program is provided to the children on a sessional basis. This means children will only attend for some portion of the week. This differs from programs offered to 3 year olds in child care which are offered for longer periods of time and are bound by the Child Care Act 2006.

A Catholic three year old program endeavours to provide a learning environment that is concerned with the development of the whole child. This includes all the developmental domains, physical, cognitive, language, social and emotional and spiritual. While this is the basis for all three year old programs each will differ according to the community it is located within. It is essential that when planning and developing a three year old program it responds to the needs of the local community. A three year old education program provides an introduction to schooling for children and their families and sets the foundation for future school learning.

Aims of a three year old education program.

The aims of the three year old program are to:

• Promote school readiness in the children, families and school.
